SURVEY FINDINGS ON TRANSPORTATION AND WHOLESALE TRADE HERE

Wholesalers Should Also Unite for Special Occasions—Permanent Bus Terminal Recommended for Center of City to Avoid Confusion.

The fifth installment of the Kingston survey is as follows:

Wholesale. Kingston has six wholesale houses dealing in confectionery; four in groceries; four in ice cream; four in meats; two in produce; two in wholesale plumbing, heating, electrical supplies, farm machinery and engines; one house, wholesale and retail, in stationery and office supplies; the National Biscuit Company; and the Fleischmann Yeast Company. The trade territory of these several houses is mainly within a radius of 100 miles, but in several cases business is done beyond this limit.

Several of these houses sell their goods by traveling salesmen, and a few report the issuance of a catalogue. The amount of business done outside of Kingston averages about 50 per cent. Eighty per cent or more of the goods handled by the wholesalers are bought outside of the city and sold to the retailers. The goods are bought outside of Kingston and with the exception of the goods of the state, this is not surprising, considering the character of the wholesale business.

The auto truck is used extensively for the delivery of goods to the retailer. Hard surface roads greatly lend to the utility of the truck and make accessible wide ranges of territory to the wholesaler and jobber.

Kingston has excellent shipping facilities and is located in a populous region, yet it is doubtful whether any ambitious attempt to build the city as a wholesaling center would repay the effort.

When a buyer of general merchandise comes to a city for the purpose of "stocking up," he is disappointed if he does not find all of his buying needs. He does not want to buy just one article like shoes or caps or dress goods but expects to find all of the lines of merchandise in which he is interested. It follows that the more wholesalers a city has, so long as there are not too many of them in a single line, the greater is the sales possibility of each concern.

The situation is very different in the case of specialties. Motorcycles, vacuum cleaners, or any other patented specialty could be sold as successfully from Kingston as from any other city of similar size. More changes of this kind require direct sales effort regardless of where the distributing point may be located. It is necessary for the selling organization to seek the best and good transportation facilities are of prime importance. In this respect, Kingston is well situated.

There is an excellent field for the wholesale houses already established in Kingston. The summer trade is a large factor in the gross business of the year. There is well established competition, particularly in the sale of food, from farmers cooperative buying associations, and there is every prospect that this competition will grow stronger. In order to meet this competition successfully, the wholesale houses must find their business on service and prices. It is a well known fact that the average retailer dealer is inclined to buy of someone whom he likes. Personal friendship is a big factor in present day distribution. Viewed from the angle of cold business, it is an even greater factor than it deserves to be.

All the wholesale houses would find it to their advantage to unite in any undertaking which led to better acquaintance with the buyers in the immediate territory. At more or less regular intervals, the customers should be invited to Kingston to visit the wholesale houses.

This has been done effectively in other places by the organization of a "Business Day." For the purpose, the wholesalers have united in furnishing a day's entertainment to their out-of-town customers. This may include a formal dinner at which good speakers are provided, a trip to the wholesale houses, a trip through one or more of the manufacturing companies or time spent in any other interesting way calculated to "sell" the city to the visitor. The best results have been obtained in those cases where the day was devoted entirely to "social" activities and no effort was made to sell goods.

When the wholesalers unite in such an undertaking, the cost to each concern is relatively low and may be prorated on the basis of the number of guests who attend in response to the invitation of each "host." The effect is much better than is the case where the Buyers' Day is handled by an individual concern as the greater number of guests brought together by united action is more impressive than the few who come in response to a single invitation.

Expansion of the wholesale business will come from an increase of the wealth of Ulster county, the development of the Catskill region as a summer resort and an increase of population in Kingston through industrial expansion. Everything that tends to build this community of Kingston is of direct interest to the wholesaler. All that has been previously said regarding trade-creation applies to wholesale business as well as retail. The wholesaler should be alert to the possibilities in development of industry, agriculture and every other primary producing unit, and accept with the other business interests of the city full share of the work and responsibility which pro-include a building for a waiting room.

If a terminal of this character were established, the merchants could arrange for the delivery of packages. This would enable a customer from Ulster county to make purchases and have them delivered to the terminal in time for the return trip. The place now proposed for this terminal station is the vacant lot in the block between Railroad avenue and Thomas street.

Reports from wholesalers show the increasing use of the auto truck. Auto truck lines will develop as feeders to the railroads and as direct carrying agents greatly extending the reach of the more progressive trade centers. There is an auto truck line that runs as far as Margaretville paralleling the Ulster and Delaware railroads, and it is taking a considerable amount of business from the railroad. There is no economic justification for an auto truck line paralleling a railroad service. This is a subject of much contention between the executives of railroads and the manufacturers of trucks, and the manufacturers are strong in their assertion that the auto truck will be a great feeder and not a competitor to the railroads. In planning for the development of transportation, account should be taken of new opportunities for business expansion rather than providing services which compete with and sometimes cripple existing agencies.

Good roads and the auto truck make possible prompt deliveries of merchandise to customers who hitherto were inaccessible. This is the proper field for development. Prompt service will be the increasing demand of the consumer and retailer. The latter, in particular, are coming better to understand the greater profit in small stocks and frequent "turn over." The auto truck will satisfy this want. Already the tendency of the retailer is to ask too much in the way of deliveries.

During the season the freight service on the Hudson river is of great advantage to this region. Shipments leaving Kingston at night are held over in New York the next morning and vice versa. This is equivalent to an express service to the world's greatest market for produce and manufactures.

Conditions for passenger traffic are not so fortunate as for freight. The West Shore railroad schedules are slow and not altogether convenient. This railroad is essentially a freight carrier. The other available means is by ferry on forty minute periods to Rhinecliff and the New York Central Railroad. A quicker service is needed and could be had if more ferry boats were used or the trip across the river shortened. As the city grows, public inconvenience and discontent will force better accommodations.

Two Bus Line Hearings.

A public service commission hearing will be held at Albany on Wednesday, May 16, at 2:30 p. m., day-light saving time, on the joint petition for assignment of certificate to operate a bus line between Kingston and Catskill from Charles Proper to Maurice Gays and Joseph A. Lynch. On the same day at 2 p. m., the petition of S. B. Longyear for permission to operate a bus between Kingston and Bearsville will be heard.

Carlson Brighter Today.

Martin Carlson, shot by a negro at the Sturgeon pool dam several days ago, was said to appear brighter today at the Kingston City Hospital but his condition remains critical.

ONE-MAN TROLLEY DENY APPLICATION FOR RE-ARGUMENT

With Opening of Hudson River Day Line Season Today Regular Trolley Service To Kingston Point Is Resumed—Fulton And Albany Running.

With the opening of the Hudson River Day Line season today the one-man trolley service between Abruzzo street on the Strand to Kingston Point Park which has been in operation all winter ceased, and regular through trolley service resumed.

The steamer Robert Fulton, which has been moored at the foot of Hamilton street, Albany, made its first regular down trip of the season this morning. During the winter the Fulton was overhauled and new tubes installed in the boilers. A trial trip a few days ago as far as Catskill showed the boat in perfect condition.

The Albany, which spent the winter berthed at the Sunflower Dock in the Rondout creek, left here earlier in the week for New York, and made its first up river trip of the season today.

All of the steamers of the Day Line will be in commission next week.

This season the Fulton is commanded by Captain Walter Magee; the Albany by Captain John Briggs; the Washington Irving by Captain David Deming; and the Hendrick Hudson by Captain John Sickles.

MICHAEL GIRESI FREED FROM JAIL

Has Himself Adjudicated a Bankrupt After Being Jailed on Body Execution After Judgment Resulting From Traffic Accident.

Michael Giresi, who was arrested and brought to the county jail on March 16 on a body execution, on Wednesday was released from custody after he had filed a petition in bankruptcy and his attorney, Frank W. Brooks, had applied to the state court for a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds that Giresi had been adjudicated a bankrupt and that by the proceeding his debts had been dissolved and he therefore could not be held by the authorities. The application was granted.

Although this action is provided for by law, so far as is known this is the first case on record where such application has been made to the state court. The usual custom in such proceedings is to apply to the United States district court and this custom has been followed in local cases where bankruptcy proceedings have been instituted to clear up judgments.

Giresi, who resides at Antonia, in August, 1921, was driving an automobile near Plattekill when George Thompson, who was riding a motorcycle, was injured by reason of a collision. Thompson sued Giresi in supreme court and last December was awarded a verdict of $5,000. A. D. and A. W. Lent appeared for plaintiff in that action. Judgment was entered for that sum. An execution against Giresi was returned unsatisfied and a body execution was secured and upon this body execution Giresi was arrested and brought to jail, where he remained until this week, when he was released.

Giresi after he had been in jail for some time, filed a petition in bankruptcy. Mr. Brooks then made his application to the state court and when this application was granted the prisoner was released.

FIVE AMERICANS STILL HELD BY CHINESE BANDITS; INDEMNITY MOUNTS

Peking is Pessimistic as to Prospects of Their Release—Allen and Pinger Boys Relate Story of Things They Saw in Treasure Cave.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, May 12.—Fifteen men, including five Americans, and two women are still held captive by the Suchow bandits, despite the fact that the progressive indemnity threatened by the diplomatic council in Peking takes effect today, according to Minister Schurman's dispatches to the state department this morning. The Americans are Allen, Pinger, Friedman, Solomon and Powell.

J. A. Henley, San Francisco banker, is reported to have been liberated by the bandits. He said the other prisoners were in good condition.

Peking, May 12.—Wearing blue coolie clothes over their pajamas and coarse coolie shoes, eight year old Roland Pinger and 12 year old Robert Allen, who were seized and liberated by Chinese bandits, arrived here today to join their frantic mothers.

"They have had more adventures since last Sunday than falls to the lot of millions of normal boys. After being liberated by the brigands they were put on a train at Lincheng and sent to Tien-Tsin. The boys were accompanied from the bandits' stronghold by a Chinese who spoke English. He went with them all the way to Tien-Tsin.

"The boys' faces were burned with the sun and their feet were bruised but otherwise they suffered no ill effects.

"The boys were so interested in the thrilling events around them that they didn't mind stone bruises, tan and blinding clothes.

"I saw father's glasses, too," said Robert.

All the women except a Mexican were released. The Mexican woman has a very low opinion of Chinese bandits.

"I have traveled through Spain and Mexico and I must say that Chinese bandits are worse than those of any other country," she said. She is Mrs. M. Vera, of Guadalajara. The bandits tried to force her to carry a white flag down the mountain side to the commander of the soldiers while the firing was in progress, but she refused to leave her husband.

"I wasn't afraid," the woman explained to a companion. "Why these fellows couldn't hit anything."

It was reported that Major Pinger, father of Roland, was wounded, but this was not true.

G. D. Museo, an Italian, who was captured by the bandits, became ill and was left under guard in a village.

Freud and Edward Elias, brothers, escaped.

The boys wound up their narrative by saying:

"The men are all right. At night when the bandits move they carry prisoners on their shoulders if the prisoners are too weak or too sick to march. We told our fathers that we would take care of our mothers. We told them not to worry as we would see to everything."

husband who is a millionaire, were upon their honeymoon.

Word was received by the consulate Friday that fifteen men and two women were held by the bandits.

All were in good health except Museo.

Authorities here are pessimistic despite word from Shanghai that the prisoners would be liberated. Officials counsel patience.

Miss Lucy C. Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who was one of the first to be liberated by the bandits, took her reception calmly.

"Well, here I am with my pet bandit," exclaimed Miss Aldrich, when she arrived at Tsinan-Fu. Miss Aldrich was addressing Mrs. J. Natell, wife of the head of the Asia Development Company, who was assisting in the rescue work. She laughed as she continued.

"This bandit rescued me." She was wearing some coolie clothes.

On her way to the hospital, Miss Aldrich laughed heartily as she recalled some of the comic incidents of the raid. She was overjoyed to learn that her French maid and her companion, Miss McFadden, had been released, and were safe.

Mrs. Natell gave further details of the attack.

"When the rain began Miss Aldrich who was dressed only in her nightgown, grabbed two valuable belongings," said Mrs. Natell. "She was forced from the train at the point of a rifle."

Miss Aldrich and several others were surrounded by eight bandits and forced through a field of grain. At the foot of a mountain Miss Aldrich hid the belongings under a rock while the bandits were not looking.

"The bandits got some donkeys and one of them was given to Miss Aldrich to ride. The bandits found some cold rice among the loot and by signs asked Miss Aldrich what it was. She evidently thought it was something to eat. She told them it was to put upon the face. Then they held up a hot water bottle and the captive had considerable difficulty in explaining its use. All the prisoners in Miss Aldrich's immediate party were Chinese, except herself. She showed a kindly interest in the brigands and they reciprocated her attitude. She fell from her donkey several times from sheer weakness and finally the leader told her to get down that she was free and could return to her train. It was near a village and she found way in that direction.

Miss Aldrich then lay down in a field. A storm of rain and hail came up but she was so exhausted she slept through it. After sunrise a crowd of people surrounded her, kneeling with wide eyes at her strange attire.

Miss Aldrich made signs that she was hungry and that she wanted to wash her face. The women scurried off soon returned with a bowl of rice and ten eggs. They gazed curiously at her white skin and watched in amazement as Miss Aldrich tried to comb her hair. A man came along with a cart and offered to give her lift. She clambered into the clumsy two wheeled affair and rode until the man said he would go no further. Then she obtained a wheel barrow and got a man to wheel her towards the railway line. She was met by Mr. Natell who took her into Linhai.

It was not until she got upon the train that Miss Aldrich saw the bandit who had rescued her by obtaining her release. He made signs that he was hungry and Miss Aldrich obtained him some food. She took him to Tsinan-Fu calling him her "pet bandit" and treating him to luxuries that he had never enjoyed before.

The ministry of communications said that word had been received from Roy Anderson, who, with the Chinese superintendent of customs, at Nanking, visited the mountains where the bandits were quartered Thursday. They said that supplies of various kinds had been sent for the relief of the prisoners.

The commander of the Chinese troops promised to retire if the bandits were really in earnest in their threats against the lives of the prisoners unless the troops did draw off. The military governor of Shanghai province visited the bandits' stronghold and conferred with an intermediary. He sent word to Peking that he believed the prisoners would be released within a short time.

Major Pinger, father of the boy, also visited the bandit stronghold but at present reports he had not returned.

There is discussion in official circles of the Japanese declaration that Tokio will make no effort to release the prisoners, owing to the Washington conference agreements. Chinese newspapers express keen regret over the occurrence. They express fears that the Chinese government may forget the plight of the Chinese prisoners after the foreign-ers have been released.

There is editorial comment over the fact that the prisoners, despite this fact, the Japanese consul at Lincheng is asserting the other consuls to obtain the release of the captives.

Daddy's Evening

Fairy Tale

THE FRIENDLY SKY

"A little girl named Melly," said Daddy, "was ill for quite a little time but now she was getting better and the thing she liked best of all was to look out of the window at the sky."

"Sometimes she decided she had never properly known the sky before."

"At least she had found out once she had been ill that she did want to know the sky better."

"And she grew to know it better and better. It seemed to her as she watched it that the sky told her many things and the sky always illustrated its talk by color clouds."

"I can't have color clouds," the sky seemed to explain to her one time. "I have no way of using them even if I had them, but this way is a pretty good way."

"And then one day Melly wrote a verse or so and she said it was written to the sky. The Friendly Sky."

"This is what Melly wrote:

"The sky, I think, is friendly
Although so far away
I know it likes to see me smile
On a clear and sunny day.
And of its very human too
I know, 'cause I've seen it weep.
It's just like anyone at all
And when plunged in sky troubles deep
It has to cry its heart out.
Now, haven't you seen the sky do it?
And then it's as good as dead
And with sunlight its face is lit."

"Then Melly sang again the first four lines which she said made up the chorus of her little song to the sky."

"The sky, I think, is friendly
Although so far away
I know it likes to see me smile
On a clear and sunny day."

"And indeed the sky did." For the sky was helping to make Melly well. The sky knew how it cheered Melly up—or if it didn't know it was surely some one's business to tell it so!

"For anything which helped as much as that surely should be told of the good work it had done."

"And then Melly looked out of her window, too, and saw the dog about whom Billie Brownie had had so much to say. The dog used to stand at the different windows of a house upon the next city street."

"For Melly was in the city at this time."

"And how she did love to watch the dog as he looked out and saw what was going on. He would look up the street and down the street in just the most knowing way!"

"Sometimes his mistress would stand with him and look out the window too, and together they would see all the interesting sights and the dog would be so affectionate with his mistress and his mistress would pet him."

"Oh, yes, that cheered Melly up too. It was astonishing how many little things seemed to be so interesting."

"She enjoyed even the flowers and the plants which she could see outside others' windows almost as much as she enjoyed the fern she had and the purple hyacinth and the paper whistles."

"She used to like it too when a dark day came and rain came down steadily and quietly."

"Then all the plants would be put out for the fresh and cooling rain water drinks."

"And how much better they would look after-ward!" as though they felt ever and ever so much better."

"But above all—of course above all—was the sky, the dear friendly sky."

"How it would change its colors, now it would freeze up in all the best sky clothes."

"Melly knew the sky just adored freezing."

"And that only made her feel how much more friendly the sky was for the sky used to be so much like to do which made the sky a really understanding sky."

"And the sky too, had the most wonderful collection of colors' pictures in the world. That Melly knew was without a doubt the truth."

"The Lively Germ."

Seven-year-old Mary had been repeatedly cautioned against handling any object that might contain germs.

"Mother," she said, "I shall never play with my puppy any more, because he has germs on him."

"Oh, no!" replied the mother. "There are no germs on your puppy."

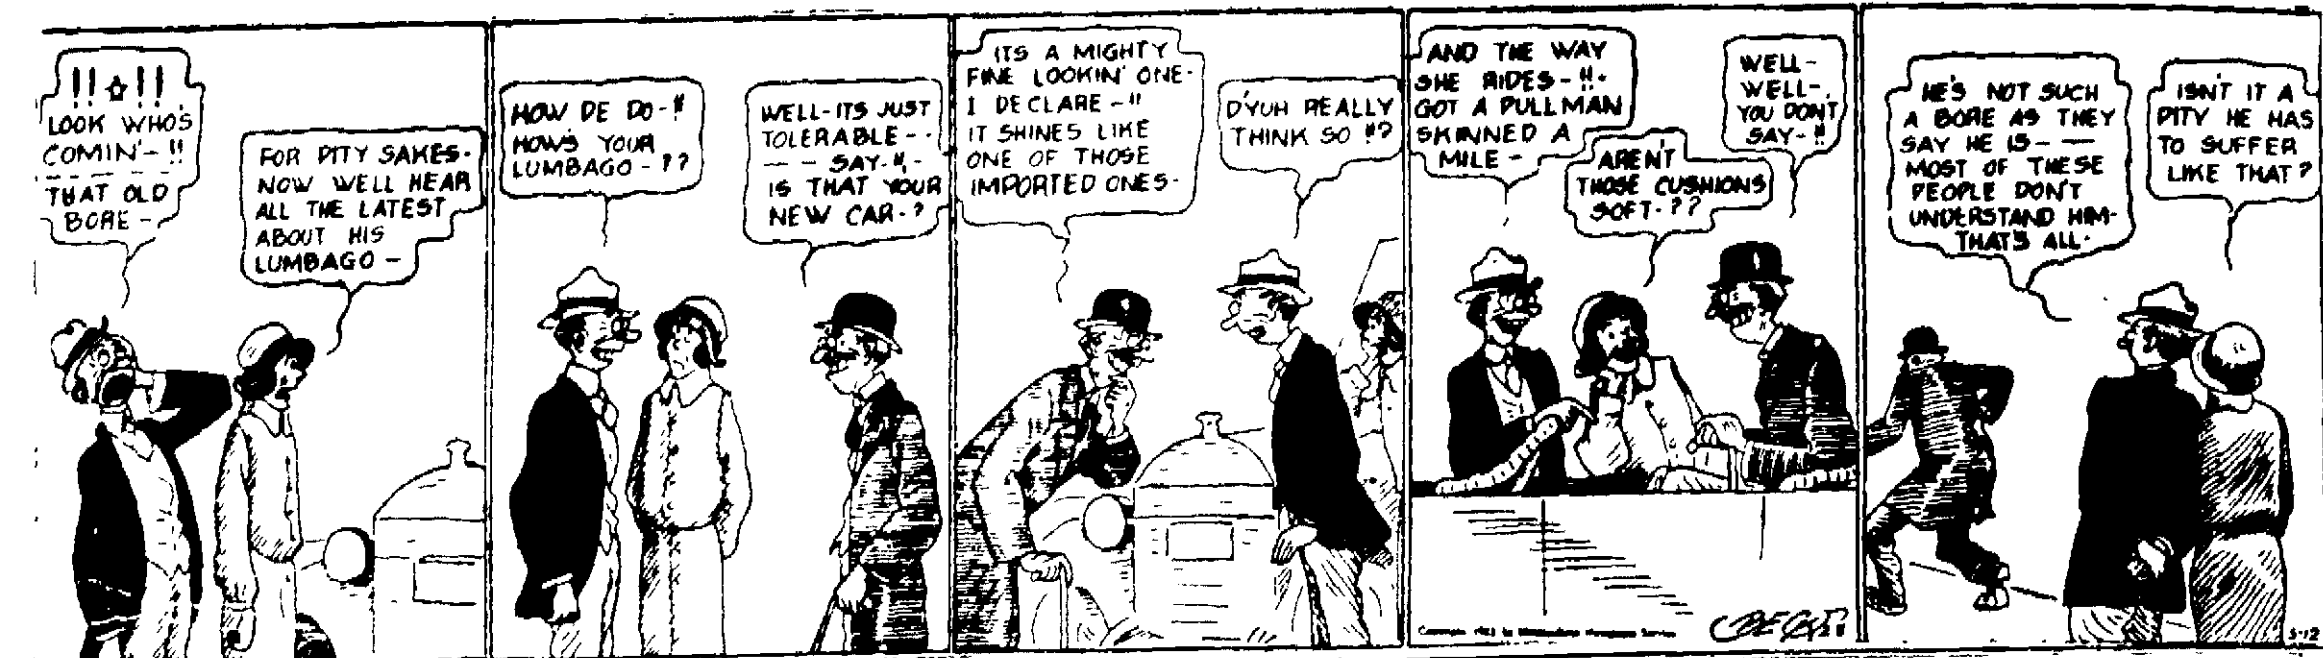

"Yes, there are," insisted the child. "I saw one hop."

(1923) (Note: This is a newspaper clipping)

If a word affords true happiness to be found in a home where love and confidence increase with care, there the happiness of life comes without the least strain or loss of time. We are told that wealth is a test of character, for we have to admit to it. Poverty is the more usual test. It is difficult to be very poor and still retain one's self-respect. A. L. H. H. H. H. H.

GOOD THINGS FOR EVERYBODY

The following is a good standard recipe for tomato soup:

Take five a slice of salt pork cut one eighth of an inch thick. Fry until light brown in color then add one small onion finely minced and a tablespoonful each of carrot, turnip and sweet pepper, brown lightly in the fat. Now add one and one-half quarts of tomato juice, if fresh, or tinned, two cloves, a sprig of parsley and celery, and half a bay leaf. Simmer covered one hour stirring occasionally. Rub all that will go through the colander and thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour cooked together. Serve hot.

Tomato Soup—Place one sweet pepper one onion one carrot and one turnip, all minced fine in a saucepan. Add a sprig of parsley, one of celery, one leaf of cabbage, two cloves, two quarts of tomatoes and one quart of water. Cover and simmer one hour, stirring often. Add salt and pepper to season, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, more if needed. Strain through a colander and thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour. This may be prepared in this manner when tomatoes are plentiful in the fall. Canned and the soup will be always ready.

Macaroni for Luncheon—Cook three-fourths of a cupful of macaroni broken into inch pieces in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, rinse in cold water and drain well. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, cook in this a slice each of onion and carrot, then remove the vegetables and add two tablespoonfuls of flour, a little salt and a dash of pepper, one-half cupful each of beef broth and tomato puree, and cook until smooth and thickened. Add the macaroni to the sauce with one half cupful of grated cheese. Cover and let stand over hot water. Serve very hot. Half a cupful of chopped ham or other cooked meat with or without the cheese may be added.

TROUT JUMP FOR WORMS

WHILE SNOW IS ON GROUND

Two inches of snow fell between Wednesday and Thursday morning. The prospect for fishing seemed poor. Thursday morning the proprietor, William Van Pelt, of the Adams Restaurant and William Van Pelt, of Big Indian, when they awoke in that vicinity at 7 o'clock, having journeyed there late Monday night and Wednesday afternoon on a trout fish-ter the tenth time sustained a broken leg. However, they decided to try their luck, and caught seventeen, of which was more than twelve inches in length. On account of the temperature of the water, they used worms for bait, also being unsuitable for catching trout under present weather conditions. To catch the fish, it was a slow and tedious process. They found the trout in a hole in the ice, practically a pond of water for it.

Broke Leg Tenth Time.

However, they decided to try their luck, and caught seventeen, of which was more than twelve inches in length. Snow Stops Bullet.

To test the penetration of rifle shots, snow walls six feet six inches thick were erected in France. Rifles were fired at a distance of fifty-five yards. In each case the ball was stopped at a penetration of five and one-half feet.

RAIN PREVENTS BOY SCOUT EVENT

Barbecue and Program Called Off—
Scouts Entertained Friday Night,
Given Big Feed and Taken Home.
Just when the Ulster County Boy Scouts were about to hold the biggest event in their history, along came the rain and spoiled it. This morning the Freeman was told over the telephone from the Woodland School that the barbecue and Scout program scheduled for this afternoon had been called off and that the "Scouts" who had spent Friday night there, in the number of 240 from all over the county, would be given a big dinner and taken home.
Scout Executive, Nesslage, and Chief Manabozho worked all night on the preparations for the barbecue and the program which was being broiled whole over the big pit of coals was nearly done this morning.
The Scouts had a royal time until the rain came along about midnight.
They had big bonfires in the light of which they were entertained by the Mohawk chieftain, Manabozho and by the Gordon, supervisor of the Bear Mountain Camp, at which are 2,700 boys. Then they retired to bed in bunk beds that kept them fine and dry during the wet night and this morning they were housed and fed in the dormitories and halls of the Woodland School.
If it had not rained, 500 visitors besides the Scouts were expected to partake of the barbecue and witness the program of Scout events that was to follow.

"POISON PEN" INQUIRY WIDENS

Other Men As Noted As Maxwell
Under State's Scrutiny—Nine
Homes Broken Up and One Man
Inmate.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, May 12. Further sensational disclosures of the "poison pen" scandal in which slanderous letters were sent to at least 15 prominent men and women, leaked today when the district attorney's office admitted that only part of the grand jury's investigation had been disclosed.

The grand jury's investigation resulted in the identification of George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Composers, authors, and musicians, as the alleged sender of scurrilous letters to Mrs. Allan A.
Ryan, Maxwell at present is in England. An effort will be made to extradite Maxwell, it was said.

As a result of the 147 letters in District Attorney Banton's possession, nine homes were broken up and one man reported sent to an insane asylum, it was said on apparently good authority.

Other men as noted as Maxwell are also said to be under the state's scrutiny in connection with the letters, which have been sent during the past ten years.

Among the prominent persons said to have received letters are the following:

Countess Santa Eulalia, widow of John H. Seaton, millionaire hat manufacturer.

Mrs. L. R. Page, Philadelphia society woman.

John Drew, the actor.

Mrs. Dorothy Caruso, widow of Euplio Caruso, the famous tenor.

Thomas W. Criddle, a former government official.

Albert R. Gallatin, broker and society leader.

Prominent persons in New York,
Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Buffalo are known to have received the letters.

Fifty men and women recipients have told their stories to the district attorney.

HITTING KINGSTON

It seems prophetic rather than simple coincidence that the cannon ball imbedded in a clay bank forming part of the heights of Ponckhockee should have performed its mission after nearly one hundred and forty-six years.

On October 10, 1777, a British squadron commanded by General Vaughan, on his way to attack Burgoyne at Saratoga, stopped at Kingston, looking for a place to disembark. The heights of Ponckhockee where the British troops had assembled for defense of the village, and after driving them off by a superior force of cannon and soldiers, burned and pillaged the village which then was the capital of the newly organized state of New York.

On May 9, 1923, nearly one hundred and forty-six years later, a seven years old boy, Edward J. Albrecht, Jr., discovered a cannon ball protruding from the side of a clay bank where a slide recently exposed virgin soil to view. While carrying it home, he fell with the cannon ball clutched in his hand and smashed a finger.

The facts stated are very simple in what way can the cannon ball bring home any lesson to Kingston people?

Whether the cannon ball was fired from one of the ships of the British squadron at the defenders of Kingston, or was left behind by the latter as they retreated in the face of fiercer fire than they could muster and a gradually sank to rest, is a question for the historians' argument but apparently not susceptible of proof. The former supposition seems a little plausible because the ball was imbedded in clay.

The important fact is, that the cannon ball caused an injury. Thereby it performed its mission. Scoffers may laugh and point out that it required almost a century and a half even for a cannon ball to fulfill its mission in Kingston, and that then the performance of its mission was directly traceable to the accident of a clay slide. They overlook the inherent ambition which prompted Albrecht to climb the heights to accomplish something, or the desire to share his joy with someone at home, but these factors cannot be overlooked because they are human factors and are characteristic of human progress and achievement.

The maker of the cannon ball intended it should do some injury. That was its mission. It injured a non-combatant, but that is the history of cannon balls. Solid iron, it still performed its mission. Shall less be said of human heads which in popular language are said to be solid ivory? And what shall be the verdict of heads that are not solid—heads that are filled with explosive material, filled with ideas which need only the proper touch in order to clear away obstacles that prevent progress. Explosive ideas need not necessarily injure some human being, as the Revolutionary cannon ball was intended to do.

It required more than one hundred and forty-six years of inactivity before the Revolutionary cannon ball by a combination of natural and human causes performed its work. There are no human cannon balls, but Kingston is filled with men and women who have not yet performed their mission, done their work, to help the city grow in every line of activity and beauty and to possess of finer quality instead of rusty and more gross like the cannon ball. And Kingston is no exception in this respect. Some of these men and women have highly explosive ideas, but they should remember that explosives have many uses and serve many purposes. The Revolutionary cannon ball performed its mission of injury with only a minimum of harm to a human being.

If the old cannon ball and its lesson should smash the false pride and destroy the don't-care-a-damn-ness of only one individual and thereby arouse that person to activity which will benefit Kingston, then it hit a bullseye when it struck Kingston and performed its mission in a way that will last for more than the one hundred and forty-three years. The old iron ball performed its work in spite of a great handicap. Are men and women of Kingston doing theirs? Even a rusty old Revolutionary cannon ball may teach us a valuable lesson. Like the cannon ball, we may have been slow, but we are sure it is to be hoped, however, that the Revolutionary cannon ball method of accomplishing a purpose had its last demonstration with the old British ball from the Ponckhockee hill.

1. I have a pair of wood ducks with clipped wings. Will they stay on my pond if I liberate them? Can you tell me anything about raising them?
2. We have none. The house should be made with compartments, each room about 6 by 7 inches, with an entrance 2 1/2 inches diameter. Place the house from 15 to 20 feet high, on a pole. As this house will be adopted by English sparrows if they get a chance, the entrances must be kept screened until the martins come in spring, and after they leave in fall. Some people take down the house during the winter.

3. Can the common brook trout live in the sea and for how long?
If you mean does it come to sea, yes, particularly along the Canadian ocean borders, where the American Charr as it is properly called, grows to a good size when living and feeding in salt water. Trout brooks that flow into some inlet of the sea often have trout a their lower end quite different in markings and in flesh color (salmon pink) due to feeding on marine diet.

A "Phenomenon" Fish Story.
Thursday evening an old timer sat on the stringpiece of the dock at the Rhinebeck ferry in deep meditation. His thoughts were reminiscent. Turning to a friend he said: "I am going to tell you about one of the most phenomenal things that I have ever seen. Sometimes you know when there is a warm rain worms come down with it. Why, I've seen seed walks covered with worms on flat such phenomenal days. Well, one warm, sultry day in June I cum down to the creek and stood about twenty feet, anyway not more than twenty-five feet from where we be now. Suddenly it began to rain, and with it came a shower of worms. Suddenly I heard a commotion and looked out on the creek. You can pack me away to Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb if I didn't see the most phenomenal thing of the water by the hundreds of worms on the water. Some of them leaped up in the air as high as six feet. Gosh, what a spectacle it was. Such curves as them fish gyrated I never expect to see again. As the phenomenon days are scarce, the black bass caught two worms on the fly before dipping back into the water. The shower of worms lasted about five minutes, and then the fishes disappeared beneath the surface of the water. If them Kerol ball players had the curves and could catch like them fishes should be in first place all the time. Say, have you got any Mullin's?"

Very Comforting.
"It money is really good. Then I'll say," quoth Harry Hupp. "It's an optimistic talker."

Clever German Thieves.
An amazing hoax has been played on the small Prussian town of Marzhausen. A stranger, who said he represented the provincial authorities, informed the local council that he was charged with the duty of making certain changes in the electric lighting arrangements. For this purpose the existing wires at the power station must be removed and better ones substituted. The town, he added, would have to remain dark for a day. The council duly assented. Next day there arrived "mechanics" who dismantled more than 1,000 yards of copper wire. Residents, delighted to lend a hand to what they believed to be a preliminary toward getting a better lighting supply, assisted the strangers to transport the wire to the railway station. The sequel is that Marzhausen has been dwelling in darkness ever since. The only light that so far has dawned upon the inhabitants is that they have been the victims of a clever gang of metal thieves.

CHARTER MEMBERS OF THE Y. W. C. A.

Will Be Those Who Pay Dues Before June 1—Names of Membership Committee.

To be a charter member of the Kingston Y. W. C. A., one must be a member who has paid her dues before June 1st, 1923. That is, if any person has signed a pledge card and pays that pledge of one dollar or the amount of the girl reserve dues or if they take out a membership between this and June 1st and pay their dues, they will go on record as charter members.

The next question is how and where can the dues be paid. Those who make up the membership committee are as follows, and they will collect dues, or better still those who have not yet paid their dues would save much labor for the committee if they would pay the dues of their own motion to the member of the membership committee residing nearest them or connected with them in church or business.

DID YOU EVER LOSE THE USE OF ONE LEG?

Woolly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D. C.

Did you ever lose the use of one leg when it seemed that there was no reason for it? That is what frequently happens in rheumatism. But when the pain, the swelling and the disability all settle in one place there is a reason for it which will be found in the spine.

No two cases of rheumatism are exactly alike, and the case that gets your neighbor in the right knee, making one leg useless, may affect your left hip. This is easily explained. No two persons have exactly the same kind and degree of disturbance to spinal bone alignment. In one the disturbance may affect the nerve to the knee, and the weakness will center there. In another, it may be in the hip. But in either case the misalignment is discovered by the chiropractor, and by his skill he restores the correct alignment, and Nature restores health.

HEALTH FOLLOWS CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

RHEUMATISM LEAVES HIS STIFFENED KNEE

I came into the chiropractor's office, supported by two friends. My knee was stiffened and the leg was useless. I had no use of the leg. It was rheumatism, but the chiropractor found a bone in the causing pressure on a spinal nerve and after his adjustments had gone on for a time the leg suddenly limbered up and I am well. I would urge all persons who have suffered as I did, to turn to chiropractic. I gladly make this statement, that those who are ailing may know where to go.—Alec Clarke, Chiropractor Research Bureau, Statement No. 12282.

LUBRICATION IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Life of Automobile Depends Greatly on Frequent Oiling During Summer Months.

During the summer months, when the motor car is being used so extensively, owners cannot place too much emphasis on the necessity of careful and regular lubrication. At this time of the year the car is seeing more service than in any other season, and the life of the car depends upon the special attention that it receives.

Theory of Lubrication.
The theory of lubrication is to prevent two pieces of metals, that are working one against the other, from touching. This can be done by having a film of oil between these two metals. And on this film rests the future satisfaction of the bearings, cylinders, pistons and rings.

Oil should be drained from the motor crankcase and replaced with fresh oil at stated intervals. While the motor is new the oil should be drained and the crankcase flushed with kerosene, and new fresh oil put in, at the end of every 500 miles for the first 1,500 or 2,000 miles. After that it should be changed at the end of every 1,000 miles.

Remember that the additional money spent in regularly draining off all old oil and refilling with new is money saved through the long life of your motor.

Use Pure Mineral Oil.
Never use anything but pure mineral oil in the motor. Touring over heavy and hilly roads uses up oil much faster than city driving. By putting in an extra pint of oil every hundred miles or so you are avoiding trouble with bearings and cylinders.

Do your oiling before you hear a "squeak," for that sound implies a rusted or dry bearing, and when once in that condition, trouble is sure to follow.

The construction of some cars makes lubrication easy and effective, especially those cars which are equipped with a double oiling system known as force-feed and constant level splash system, which insures positive lubrication of all moving parts at all speeds.

USEFUL AS THREAD CLEANER

Fairly Stiff Piece of Wire Bent Nearly Double With Ends at Right Angles is Handy.

Every car owner who cares for his own vehicle has had more or less

MADE IN 1899 AND STILL GOING

The automobile shown in the photograph was manufactured in Paris, France, twenty-four years ago and is still in good condition—running with its original equipment. In 1900 it took first prize at the Hudson-Fulton celebration as the oldest car then in America. It has been in the same family since purchased in 1899. Joseph Devanary and his brother Louis (on left driving machine on Broadway, New York City) have just donated it to the Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., where it will be placed in a museum.

trouble with grit and other foreign matter getting into the threads or bolts or in the tapered holes about the chassis. It is hard to dislodge this dirt except by a special thread cleaner of some kind. By taking a fairly stiff piece of wire and bending nearly double and then bending the two ends at right angles to the body of the device and filing these ends to fit threads of the screw a very efficient little cleaner is produced.

CAREFUL DRIVING

On wet streets the careful driver is even more careful.

Skidding, once started, is hard to stop. Turning the wheels in the direction of the skid will help. But this is dangerous inasmuch as usually there are cars, or children, or curbs, in the way.

The only skid that you can control absolutely is the one that doesn't start!

Slow, even turns; slow, even stops; slow, even starts will avoid skids.

Do not disengage your clutch! Tire chains are of assistance on wet or muddy roads.

Clear vision, obtained by windshield wipers, is also essential.

LOOSE WHEEL CAUSE OF PECULIAR NOISE

Cars With Semi-Floating Rear Axles Give Queer Creaking Sound When Starting Off.

"Ever notice how some of these cars with semi-floating rear axles give a peculiar creaking sound when they start off?" asks a Louisville repairman. "The noise seems to come from one of the rear wheels and sounds like something in need of grease. When I spoke to one party about the noise his left hand wheel made each time he let in the clutch he explained that the trouble was due to the left brake band. He said it needed cleaning and readjusting. I asked him where he got the fool idea, knowing well that some service station mechanic who used to wash cars before he decided there was more money in pre-tending to be a mechanic gave him this line of talk.

"Well, there's nothing wrong with the brake bands on these cars and never was. It's simply a loose wheel on the axle. A lot of drivers don't believe this when I tell 'em because they unscrew the hub cap, take out the cotter pin and find that the nut on the axle seems tight enough. But that's just the point. The nut is tight to furnish plenty of pressure between the wheel and the axle, but not tight enough to keep the wheel rigidly attached to the axle. The shaft turns slightly in the wheel hub when the clutch is let in, making the same sort of noise you would get by screwing a tapered glass stopper into the neck of a vinegar cruet."

REMOVING RUST FROM RIMS

Jack Up Rear Wheels and Start Engine in High—Application of Emery Paper Does Work.

To remove rust from the rims of a car, jack up the rear wheels and start the engine running in high. The wheels will spin and emery paper is applied to the rim with a block and the rust will be eaten off in short order.

PRECAUTION FOR HAND PUMP

Good Plan to Give Few Strokes Before Attaching Device to the Tire Valve.

When using a hand pump it is best to give the pump a few strokes before attaching it to the tire valve. In this way matter that may be clinging to the pump valve will be prevented from getting into the inner tube.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Blow out carburetor and gasoline lines to eliminate water and sediment.

A weak clutch spring can be repaired temporarily by placing washers under it.

Extreme care should be taken to see that nothing on the car scrapes the tires as they revolve.

A "rear-end driver" who annoys the operator of an automobile, should be asked to get out and walk.

A very useful article to have in the tool box is the type of clamp variously known as a "C" clamp or a "U" clamp.

A loose flywheel is distinguished by a loud continuous rattle or a series of sharp knocks, particularly at low engine speed.

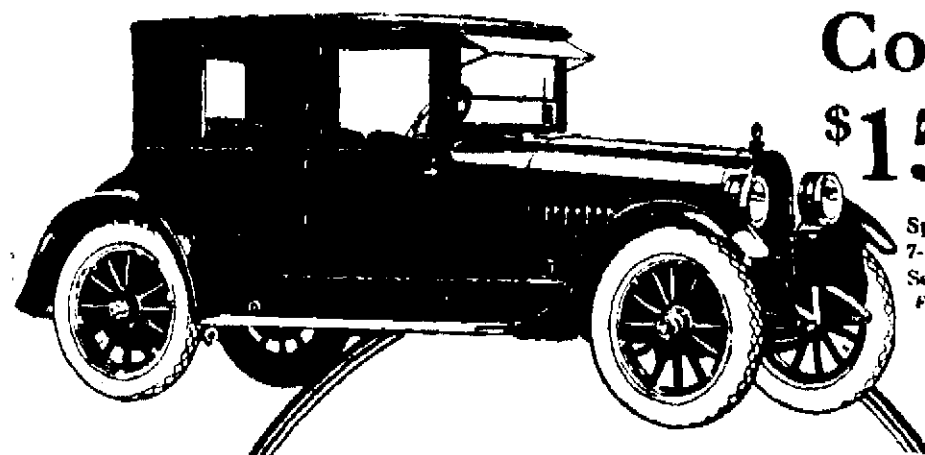

A little oil on the clutch thrust bearing may facilitate gear shifting. It surely will prolong the life of that important member.

A cloth moistened with gasoline, used once or twice a week, to remove mud from tires, will greatly lengthen the life of the rubber.

Things That Count in Moderate Priced Closed Cars

The Coach is a Hudson-Essex invention. It was created to provide closed car comforts at little more than open car cost.

Closed cars, on high-grade chassis, were too costly for most buyers. So a revolutionary thing was done.

An entirely new closed body design that eliminated all the old, costly manufacturing methods was invented. And production on a scale unknown in the closed car field was started. It brought closed car comforts within reach of all.

The Coach is durable. More than 40,000 owners are proud of it. It has a simple and sturdy beauty. There is ample and comfortable carrying space for passengers and luggage. Body rumbling noises are totally absent. Doors and windows stay tight fitting.

The Coach is built for service. On either the Hudson or Essex chassis it is ready always for any use.

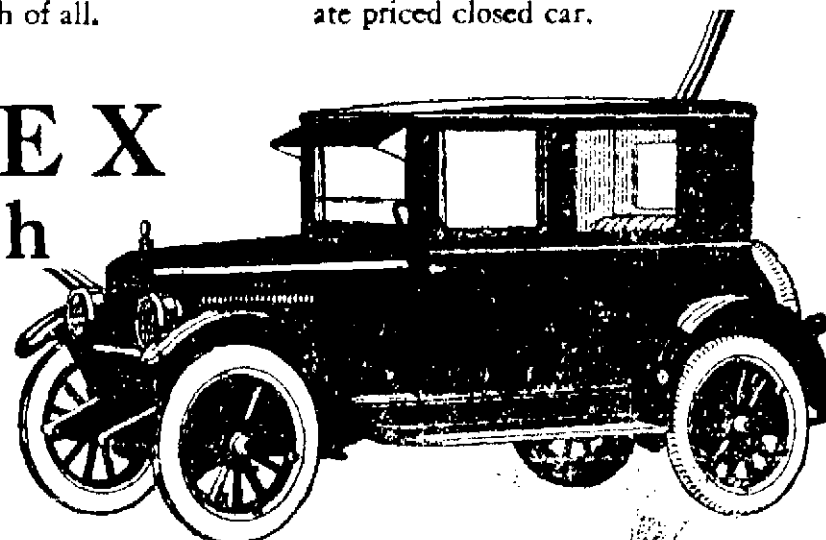

These are the essentials of a moderate priced closed car.

rid Onegin created a sensation as a new member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Her voice has the glorious richness of tone looked for in great contraltos. Like other artists of the New Hall of Fame she selected Brunswick to immortalize her voice because of its faithful interpretation of the difficult tones, its clearness and brilliant interpretation. Mrs. Onegin gives the two beautiful Brahms songs a rendition full of glowing color and rare sense of expression. Be sure and hear them.

New Brunswick Records are now issued every day. They can be played on any phonograph but best on The Brunswick.

LAWYERS AND M.D.'S DISCUSS LIQUOR

Palmer Canfield, Jr., federal prohibition director for the state of New York, received another setback on Thursday from his superiors at Washington regarding his contention that Federal Judge Knox's decision whereby physicians are not limited to prescribing one pint of liquor in ten days applied only to Dr. Samuel W. Lambert and did not apply to any other physician. Following long-recognized rules in federal and state courts everywhere, the officials at Washington promptly announced that a decision on the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of a particular law or section of a law applied to everyone and was not limited, as Mr. Canfield claimed, to the particular case in which the decision is made.

Local lawyers have been somewhat amused by the new prohibition attitude that a court decision is limited in its effect to the particular litigant instead of having universal application, and point out that if such a condition existed every citizen would be compelled to apply to court for relief whenever any law was declared unconstitutional; otherwise the law would remain in force as against those who neglected to hire a lawyer and go to court. The new prohibition contention is absolutely new in the world's history of the administration of law, unless it exists in Russia.

Washington dispatches state that administration clerks take the position that only doctors within the court's jurisdiction would be concerned by Judge Knox's decision, and that even if the decision was made mandatory, physicians outside the jurisdiction would not have the opportunity of prescribing as they saw fit for their patients. At the same time, it was recognized that the decision in the southern district of New York would no doubt impel physicians in other jurisdictions to seek redress in their district courts.

The situation, as pointed out by lawyers, created by Judge Knox's decision is similar to the situation which arises in New York state when a decision is rendered by one of the appellate divisions of the supreme court declaring any state law unconstitutional, or construing any law. The state is divided into four appellate departments, and must the court of appeals finally makes a decision, the decision of each appellate division is binding within that particular department. It has not been uncommon for the appellate divisions of the four departments to disagree in their construction of a law until the court of appeals has made a final determination which is thereafter binding on all of them.

The United States is divided into many federal court districts, or jurisdictions, and until a final decision is rendered by the United States supreme court on a disputed law, the decisions of the federal judges in the different districts and also of the different circuit courts of appeal, which embrace the jurisdictions of several states, are binding in those jurisdictions.

The present prohibition law limits a physician to one hundred prescriptions every three months, regardless of the number of patients he has or other conditions, and each prescription is limited to one pint of liquor. The Anti-Saloon League lawyers are already saying that Judge Knox's decision is contrary to the decisions of other courts and that the United States supreme court will not sustain Judge Knox. Washington officials take the stand that it is a very delicate question whether the government should say just how much whiskey a patient really needs when he is ill.

Local physicians frequently have pointed out that the limit of one pint of whiskey in ten days is entirely impracticable in procuring beneficial results in numerous cases. Where milk punches are desired to be prescribed for a patient for three times a day, it is possible to stretch a pint of liquor over a period of ten days only by the use of the most vivid prohibition imagination.

LOCAL TALENT IN THE MOVIES

The Leopold Wharton Productions to start "Shooting" Here in Ten Days—Local Talent May Send Him Their Photographs to Lamb's Club, New York.

Leopold Wharton and members of the staff of the Wharton Productions left Kingston Friday afternoon for New York City after viewing the various proposed movie locations in and about Kingston.

Charles A. Petersen, technical director, stated before leaving for New York that Mr. Wharton was desirous of using local talent wherever possible and if any desired to participate in the movies to be filmed here they could send him their photographs, making them to him care of the Lamb's Club, West 44th street, New York. By using local talent he would not have to bring such a large troupe to Kingston.

The actual shooting of the films will be started here in about ten days, according to Mr. Petersen. Friday the movie men in company with Secretary Cox of the Chamber of Commerce visited a number of proposed locations in and about the city.

New York, May 12.—A fresh onslaught of the bears today resulted in a continuation of the downward movement on the stock market, prices falling from 1 to nearly 3 points with new low records for the year being made in many issues.

Steel common, the market leader, sold off to 37 1/4, the lowest price it touched this year, and a loss of nearly 2 points. Bethlehem Steel, on account of a reduction in the dividend rate, fell nearly 2 points to 53 1/4, and Baldwin slumped nearly 3 points to 12 1/4.

The motor, oil and copper shares also sustained losses. Canadian Pacific in the face of the general weakness produced an impressive rise of 1 1/2 points to 153 1/2.

Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

FORD SAID TO PLAN BANK CHAIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, May 12.—Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, is planning to establish a nation-wide chain of banks, according to reports in the financial district today. Some financiers see in the Ford installment plan, by which an automobile may be purchased for $5 a week, the first step in the project. It is reported to be Ford's intention to become independent of existing money markets, following his turnaround by Wall street in 1920.

Reading-Vrooman.
The historic old First Reformed Dutch Church was the scene this afternoon at 4 o'clock of a beautiful spring wedding, at that hour Miss Janet H. Vrooman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Vrooman of Pearl street, being united in marriage to Dr. John Philip Reading, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reading, of Stuyvesant street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Lucius Boeve, pastor of the church. W. Whiting Freidenburgh, organist of the church, presided at the organ. It was an apple blossom wedding, the church being very artistically and profusely decorated with apple blossoms and the bridesmaids carrying armfuls of the lovely bloom. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was most charming in her bridal gown of white chiffon, wearing a veil caught with orange blossoms. She was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Vrooman, her sister, and Miss Eleanor Reading, a sister of the groom. The maids wore pretty frocks of changeable chiffon taffeta and picture hats. Dr. Reading had as his best man Mac Donald L. Edinger, formerly of Kingston, now of Providence, Long Island. The ushers were Joseph E. Vandervort, Eugene T. McConnell, Henry Wood and Dr. Frederick Brucks of Bethlehem, Pa. Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at Wilkwyck Inn, to which only the immediate members of the families of the bride and groom and the bridal party were bidden. On their return to Kingston after their wedding journey, Dr. and Mrs. Reading will take up their residence in a newly furnished home in this city.

The Cause.
The coffee was extremely bad. He had to drink perfume. And everybody thought he had good grounds for a divorce.

Penalistic Doctrine.
The highest order of mind is accused of folly, as well as the lowest. Nothing is thoroughly approved but mediocrity. The majority has established this, and it fixes its fangs on whatever gets beyond it either way.—Pascal.

"Children" and "Tons."
While all children are tons, all tons are not necessarily children. To illustrate, all children of doctors must be dead, but their children will still be tons—not children, but good children of the tons.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)
SWEET BILL AIDS THOUSANDS

Measure Passed at Close of Sixty-Seventh Congress Benefits Many Afflicted Soldiers.

The lives of nearly ten thousand World war veterans will be saved, or at least prolonged, by the passage of the Sweet bill just at the close of the Sixty-seventh congress, according to American Legion officials. The United States veterans' bureau has highly commended the activity of the American Legion in bringing this bill to a vote at the eleventh hour, though Commander Alvin Owsley was forced to get into the fight himself and, through his organization, insist on the passage of the act.

Countless veterans afflicted with some form of tuberculosis have left their homes and are now wanderers in Western states in hope of seeking out a cure for the disease. Many of these are destitute and the passage of the bill, which permits a greater leniency by the extension of the time in which disability resulting from service origin may be termed as entitling the veteran to compensation, is one of the beneficial results.

The provisions of the bill, affording more practical, beneficial protection for the veterans, are sweeping. Perhaps that feature which struck out of the former law the word "pulmonary", so that every veteran may come under the extent of the act, is the most far-reaching. The previous law limited the veterans' bureau to a consideration of pulmonary cases alone, and no examination was required, but officers of the bureau were permitted to use their medical knowledge in determining the approximate date when the affliction became active.

In another section of the law the time for securing a certificate of disability has been extended to March 1, 1924. The former ruling terminated this period on August 3, 1922. These certificates are incontestable evidence of the service origin of the injury, except in cases of fraud, and holders may receive compensation and hospital care; or, if the veteran dies, death compensation.
